RURAL BUSINESS-COOPERATIVE PROGRAMS

RURAL BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY GRANT (RBOG) PROGRAM

The purpose of the Rural Business Opportunity Grant (RBOG) program is to promote sustainable economic development in rural communities with exceptional needs. This is accomplished by making grants to organizations to provide for economic development planning, technical assistance, or training.

Who May Receive Grants?

To receive a RBOG, you must be a public body, nonprofit corporation, Indian tribe, or cooperative with members that are primarily rural residents. You must have sufficient expertise in the activities you propose to carry out with the grant funds and financial strength to ensure you can accomplish the objectives of the proposed grant.

How May Grant Funds Be Used?

If awarded a RBOG, you may use the funds to pay costs of providing economic planning for rural communities, technical assistance for rural businesses, or training for rural entrepreneurs or economic development officials. You must be able to show that the funding will result in economic development of a rural area. Your project must include a basis for determining the success or failure of the project and assessing its impact.

What Is Included In An Application?

To develop an application, obtain a copy of the complete program regulation and refer to the application section. Briefly, an application must include Form SF 424 ("Application for Federal Assistance (for Non-Construction)"), a copy of your organizational documents and organization's financial statement, your scope of work, a written narrative, and a project budget. An application template is available upon request.

Where Can Applications Be Filed?

You may file applications with the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) Rural Development State Office in Lincoln.

How Will The Government Select Among Eligible Applications?

We will use a priority scoring system that considers the sustainability and quality of the economic activity expected to result from the project; the extent to which the project is critical to a larger overall project; economic conditions in the service area, such as recent loss of a major employer, long-term job deterioration, poverty, or population decline, and the project's usefulness as a new best practice.

New best practice/best practice project is defined as an action that has potential applicability in other rural communities and which potentially has instructional value when shared with those communities.

Rural and rural area is defined as any area of a State that is not within the boundaries of a city with a population in excess of 50,000 inhabitants, according to the latest decennial census of the United States.
