PREPARING THE ENVIRONMENTAL REPORT
FOR WATER AND WASTE PROJECTS

TECHNICAL SUPPORT STAFF
TEXAS USDA RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Introduction

Rural Utilities Service (RUS) Bulletin 1794A-602, "Guide for Preparing the Environmental Report for Water and Waste Projects," and provides the Agency's environmental report requirements. The purpose of the Texas Rural Development supplement to RUS Bulletin 1794A-602 is to assist the consultant in meeting these requirements in preparing the environmental report. Information found in the Supplement includes the names and addresses of Federal and State environmental regulatory agency officials who have jurisdiction over environmental resources in Texas, a brief description of state plans and jurisdictional areas, and governmental review processes. Additional information on RUS programs and environmental requirements may be found on the RUS Home Page at www.usda.gov/rus/water.

The Federal Endangered Species Act of 1973, as amended, provides a program to help safeguard the nation's plants and animals from extinction. Highly imperiled species are designated as "endangered" and those somewhat less so are listed as "threatened."

Rural Development shall not authorize, fund, or carry out any proposal or project that is likely to (1) jeopardize the continued existence of any plant or wildlife species listed by the Secretary of Interior or Commerce as endangered or threatened; or (2) destroy or adversely modify the habitats of listed species when such habitats have been determined critical to the species' existence by the Secretary of Interior or Commerce, unless Rural Development has been granted an exemption for such proposal by the Endangered Species Committee pursuant to Subsection (h) of Section 7 of the Endangered Species Act.

In accordance with the Endangered Species Act, all Rural Development-assisted projects and actions must be examined to determine if the proposal will adversely affect a listed species on the U.S. List of Endangered and Threatened Wildlife and Plants or a critical habitat. The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service has these lists in two formats including a list of species by county for each state and a list of species with all counties of occurrence in a single field. This can be found at the following Web Site:

http://ifw2es.fws.gov/endspes/lists/

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service is also a source of National Wetland Inventory Maps. Information on these can be found at the following Web Site:

US ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) has jurisdictional determinations for wetlands and other "waters of the United States," and navigable waters of the U.S.; authorizing activities in these jurisdictional areas through individual and general permits; insuring compliance of issued permits; and enforcing the requirements of the law for unpermitted activities. Included in these "waters of the U.S." are any part of the surface water tributary system down to the smallest of streams, any lake, pond, or other water body on those streams, and wetlands, whether adjacent to other waters of the U.S. or isolated. Also covered are isolated and other waters such as playa lakes, prairie potholes, old river scars, cutoff sloughs, and abandoned construction and mining pits. An important point is that waters of the United States include areas that are man-made, or man-induced, as well as natural.

Section 404 of the Clean Water Act is the Nation's primary wetland regulatory authority. Under Section 404 a permit is required from the USACE for any construction activity that the Rural Development may finance that affects or crosses "waters of the U.S." Nationwide Permit 12 is a general permit that has been authorized where utility line construction would cause only minimal environmental impacts to these waters.

Wetland delineations under Section 404 are currently made as a part of determinations of waters of the United States primarily by the Corps and occasionally by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) using the 1987 Corps of Engineers Wetlands Delineation Manual. However, the Department of the Army signed a Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) with the Department of Agriculture, Department of the Interior, and EPA in January 1994 for wetland delineations on agricultural lands. Under this MOA, the Corps and EPA will accept written Natural Resource Conservation Service wetland delineations for agricultural land under the Food Security Act as the final government position on the extent of Section 404 wetland jurisdiction. This MOA is currently being revised because of recent amendments to the Food Security Act.

Under the Safe Drinking Water Act, the USEPA Administrator designates appropriate "sole source" aquifers as principal drinking water sources which, if contaminated, would create a significant hazard to public health. Federal financial assistance may not be used for a project in a designated sole source aquifer area when the USEPA determines that the project may contaminate the aquifer so as to create a significant health hazard. Memorandum of Understanding between the Texas Rural Development and the USEPA, Region VI, contains policy relating to Sole Source Aquifers designated in Texas as well as when USEPA review is required. Rural Development is required to consult with the USEPA for projects potentially affecting sole source aquifers. Texas has one sole source aquifer separated into two areas. San Antonio Area Edwards Aquifer and Austin Area Edwards Aquifer. Information concerning sole source aquifers can be obtained by contacting the Sole Source Aquifer Coordinator, Eriece Allen, USEPA, Region VI, 1445 Ross Avenue, 12th Floor, Suite 1200, Dallas, Texas, 75202, phone 214-665-6444.

FEDERAL EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT AGENCY

FLOOD PLAINS

EO 11988 and the U.S. Water Resources Council publication, "Flood Plain Management Guideline for Implementing EO 11988" (the Guidelines), shall be followed for proposed actions located in or impacting a base floodplain. The objective of the EO is "... to avoid to the extent possible the long and short term adverse impacts associated with the occupancy and modification of floodplains and to avoid direct or indirect support of floodplain development wherever there is a practicable alternative..." A floodplain is described as any land area susceptible to being inundated from any source of flooding. The base floodplain is the 100-year floodplain except for critical actions (such as most hospitals) as defined in the Guidelines. For critical actions, the floodplain area of consideration is the 500-year.

Project locations may be screened for floodplain proximity by using floodplain maps published by the Federal Insurance Administration of the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Detailed maps showing the elevations and boundaries of the "100-year" (Zones A and V) and "500-year" (Zone B) flood plains are known as Flood Insurance Rate Maps (FIRM). Many communities which have a FIRM also have a Flood Insurance Study Report (FIS) containing detailed flood information. Less detailed maps known as Flood Hazard Boundary Maps (FHBM) showing the approximate areas of the base (Zone A) floodplain are available for most of the remaining communities. Updated floodplain maps can be obtained by calling the FEMA map ordering section at 800-358-9616 or fax 800-358-9620. For best service, phone early or late in the day from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Mail order forms are also available.

The FEMA National Flood Insurance Program Community Status Book provides information about communities participating in the National Flood Insurance Program and communities that are not but have had special flood hazards identified.

FEMA Form 81-93, "Standard Flood Hazard Determination," should be included with each environmental report where a structure/building is being proposed.

The following two pages are a copy of a release from FEMA which provides many contact sources for information, maps, changes and corrections, and questions.

NATURAL RESOURCE CONSERVATION SERVICE

Basic requirements for Farmland Protection are found in three policies:

(1) Departmental Regulation (DR) 9500-3, Land Use Policy, the latest revision is dated March 22, 1983, included in RD Instruction 1940-G as Exhibit A.

(2) National Environmental Policy Act.

(3) The Farmland Protection Policy Act (FPPA) of December 22, 1981. The implementing regulation (7 C.F.R. Part 658), was written by the Natural Resource Conservation Commission and is therefore known as the "SCS rule."

DR 9500-3 applies only to agencies of the Department of Agriculture, whereas the FPPA applies to all Federal agencies.

The basic FPPA requirements are (1) identify and consider adverse effects, (2) consider alternative actions to avoid or lessen adverse effects, and (3) ensure that our programs are compatible with existing programs to protect farmland. FPPA defines three categories of important farmland (Prime Farmland, Unique Farmland, and Statewide or local important farmland. The state of Texas does not recognize unique farmland.

Soils information may be obtained from the local offices of the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS). Soil surveys of the county can provide useful information for determining if prime farmland soils are located in the project area.

The Land Evaluation and Site Assessment System (LESA) is useful in comparing different sites for their relative value for agricultural use. All federal agencies are required to use LESA to assess the impacts of proposed conversion of farmland and to consider alternatives. Using this system, the alternative causing the least disruption of the agricultural resource base can be identified. Form AD-1006, "Farmland Conversion Impact Rating," should be used to help document project site selections. NRCS will provide land evaluations (LE), included in Parts II, IV and V, assessing the portions of the sites containing prime or unique farmland or farmland of State or local importance.

LESA can be considered a point system for determining the feasibility of looking for alternative sites. If the site receives a total score of less than 160 points, we are not required to look for alternative sites, either by FPPA or by the DR 9500-3. In other words, if the score is less than 160 points, we may proceed with the conversion.

The Natural Resource Conservation Service's opinion regarding the application of FPPA and the USDA Regulation 9500-3 definitions of prime farmland to the project site must be requested. This special request can be made by typing, "Natural Resource Conservation Service's opinion is requested regarding the application to the project site of both prime farmland policies, the one contained within the Farmland protection Policy Act and the one contained within USDA, Departmental Regulation 9500-3.," at the bottom of Form AD-1006 under "Reasons For Selection."

A copy of Form AD-1006 must be provided to the Natural Resource Conservation Service for Prime Farmland evaluation. Included with this form should be:

(1) A small scale city or county map identifying the general proximity of the project site.

(2) A copy of the project site boundaries overlaid on a USGS topographic map (1:24000 scale).

(3) If available, a copy of the soils map or maps from the NRCS's Published Soil Survey (county) identifying the project site and utility lines. Prime farmland soils should be highlighted.

(4) When corridor projects involve several alternatives, please provide separate topographic map coverage at 1"24000 scale. This process will eliminate discrepancies pertaining to project site identification and extent.

(5) A completed photo copy of Form AD-1006 (Parts I, III, and VI) with the total acres of the project site.

This should be sent to:

Attention: Sam Brown
USDA - NRCS
Soil Survey Division
101 South Main
Temple, Texas 76501

Phone: (254) 742-9854 FAX (254) 742-9859

The FPPA recognized the following areas as not subject to the Act:

(1) Lands that are already in or committed to urban development or water storage, including those with a density of 30 structures per 40 acres.

(2) Land that receives a combined score of 160 points or less on Form AD-1006.

(3) Lands identified as "urbanized area" (UA) on Census Bureau maps.

(4) Land with a "tint overprint" on the USGS topographical map.

Soil Survey Information

To obtain copies of published soil surveys you may call Veronica Mershon at (254) 742-9860 or Pat Weber at (254) 742-9850.

Flat sheets of soil surveys can be found in the local NRCS office serving the county where the action is proposed.

TEXAS HISTORIC COMMISSION

Under Section 106 (revised as of October 1, 1986) of the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966, Federal agencies in consultation with SHPO must consider the effect of their undertakings on properties listed in or eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places and must allow the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation opportunity to comment. The Texas Historic Commission - Department of Antiquities Protection (THC) performs the review and comment function. The THC will review projects using the intergovernmental consultation process of the State Clearinghouse. Specific comments from the THC must be included in the Environmental Report.

The THC further reviews project proposals for potential effects on cultural resources (prehistoric or historic sites, districts, buildings, structures or objects included in or eligible for listing in the National Register). This information enables Rural Development to comply with the requirements of the Archeological and Historic Preservation Act of 1974.

Unless further consultation is required, documentation must be obtained from THC indicating that in the opinion of the THC the proposed undertaking will have no effect on any property that is either listed in or eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

Historic Preservation Review Procedure

The THC's review will evaluate any impact of the proposed project on properties of archeological, historical, or architectural significance. The following information shall be provided to THC for review:

(1) The project location.

Usually the best method of showing project location is by supplying appropriate map(s) and a written boundary description. County and city maps or USGS topographic maps are best for general project location. Include a more detailed project map, such as a plat map, or site plan when required. All maps should clearly show the project's location and have a scale, north arrow, legend and, if needed, a key referencing additional documentation submitted, such as photographs.*

(2) The current land use in the project area.

If buildings currently occupy the project site, photographs* will allow evaluation of any apparent architectural significance. If the site is "vacant" land, state that it is currently farmed, is a woodlot, is or was a parking lot, etc. Perhaps soil borings, grading plans, aerial photographs or other site data are available to provide this information.

(3) Any historical or archeological information that is available for the project area.

Check for and refer to any Survey Reports. If you know of historic sites or Buildings in the area, include your evaluation of any impacts on them by the proposed project.

(4) What activities are included in the project?

Make project descriptions detailed and specific. Use the following examples As guides:

Avoid this wording: "Install new water system"

Recommended wording: "Install 2,568 linear feet of 4-inch water Lines in existing street right-of-ways in a four-block area bounded By the following streets."

For additional information about procedure or coordination between the applicant and THC at any time during the application or review process, call the THC at (512) 463-6100, fax is (512) 463-8927; ask for the Historic Preservation Office or write:

A list of County Historical chairpersons is attached.

*Submit original photographs (most copier reproductions are unsatisfactory), suitably identified and labeled, showing when and where they were taken and what they depict. Attach the photographs securely to heavy 8 ½" X 11" paper.

The Texas Archaeological Research Laboratory may be helpful in researching cultural resource information at a modest price. The laboratory will need a U.S.G.S. map with the project location for them to research their files and identify cultural resources in the project area. The address is:

TEXAS NATURAL RESOURCE CONSERVATION COMMISSION

AIR QUALITY

The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) establishes air quality standards in accordance with the Clean Air Act and sets performance standards (by type of industry) for stationary sources of air contamination. The TNRCC enforces performance standards through a TNRCC approved State Implementation Plan (SIP), designates substate areas as air quality control regions, and classifies the air quality status as "attainment" or "non-attainment" of quality standards for a region.

The existing ambient standards designated by the EPA consider the following compounds:

(1) Sulfur Oxides - Sulfur oxides are generated primarily by combustion of fossil fuels through coal and oil fired furnaces and industrial uses of fossil fuels. Sulfur dioxide is most dominant, others include sulfuric acid and sulfurous acid.

(2) Particulates - Finely divided solid and liquid particles suspended in air. They are the most prevalent air pollutant and are generated by construction activities, transportation, and industrial activities such as mining, foundries, and raw material handling.

(3) Carbon Monoxide - The majority results from incomplete combustion of carbonaceous materials used for fuels for vehicles, space heating, industrial processing, and the burning of refuse.

(4) Nitrogen Dioxide - Nitrogen dioxide is emitted from high temperature combustion sources such as motor vehicles, power plants, and natural gas burners.

(5) Ozone - Ozone is a product of atmospheric reactions between hydrocarbons and nitrogen oxides which are initiated from the heat of sunlight. It is most commonly found and measured as smog.

Rural Development environmental assessment studies are concerned with the following:

(1) Air quality suitability at the project site for the intended use of the site.

(2) The compliance of any activity at the site with applicable performance standards.

Water Quality

The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission (TNRCC) establishes minimum water quality criteria for all surface waters of the State.

For point source discharges into the waters of the State, the TNRCC sets discharge standards and issues permits in accordance with the National Pollutant discharge Elimination System (NPDES). Examples of this type of discharge would be industrial and waste water treatment plant effluents.

Water quality information is available from the TNRCC Regional Offices.

TEXAS PARK & WILDLIFE

Animals

In 1973 the Texas legislature authorized the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TPW) to establish a list of endangered animals in the state. Endangered species are those species which the Executive Director of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department has named as being "threatened with statewide extinction." Threatened species are those species which the TPW Commission has determined are likely to become endangered in the future. Laws and regulations pertaining to endangered or threatened animal species are contained in Chapters 67 and 68 of the Texas Parks and Wildlife (TPW) Code and Sections 65.171 - 65184 of Title 31 of the Texas Administrative Code (T.A.C.).

Plants

In 1988 the Texas legislature authorized the TPW to establish a list of threatened and endangered plant species for the state. An endangered plant is one that is "in danger of extinction throughout all or a significant portion of its range." A threatened plant is one which is likely to become endangered within the foreseeable future. Laws and regulations pertaining to endangered or threatened plant species are contained in Chapter 88 of the TPW Code and Section 69.01 - 69.14 of the T.A.C.

Regulations

TPWD regulations prohibit the taking, possession, transportation, or sale of any of the animal species designated by state law as endangered or threatened without the issuance o a permit. State laws and regulations prohibit commerce in threatened and endangered plants and the collection of listed plant species from public land without a permit issued by TPWD. In addition, some species listed as threatened or endangered under state law are also listed under federal regulations. These animals are provided additional protection by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

Listing and Recovery

Listing and recovery of endangered species in Texas is coordinated by the TPW Resource Protection Division. The Department's Legal Division is responsible for the issuance of permits for the handling of listed species.

The web site to obtain information on threatened and endangered species for the state is: http://www.tx.tpwd.state.tx.us/nature/endang/endang/htm

TEXAS GENERAL LAND OFFICE

The Texas General Land Office (GLO) is the lead agency for the Texas Coastal Management Program. The GLO's Coastal Management Division serves as the staff for the Coastal Coordination Council, which oversees the program. The Coastal Management Division also administers Texas' program for managing development along Gulf beaches and dune areas, which is a joint program with local governments. Finally, the Coastal Management Division supports the GLO's programs for managing nearly four million acres of state-owned land underlying the state's bays and estuaries and the Gulf of Mexico.

In the late 1980s, coastal communities initiated a grass roots campaign for state assistance in resolving the problem of fragmented management of coastal resources and other complex coastal problems that exceeded local government authority. In response to this effort, in 1989 the Texas Legislature directed the General Land Office (GLO) to coordinate development of a comprehensive, long-range plan for the management of state-owned coastal lands.

Following that first directive, the legislature enacted a series of bills which established authority for development of the Texas Coastal Management Program (TCMP) and steered the course of the TCMP. The final legislative action in 1995 made a number of changes to the program and renewed the state's commitment to efficient and effective coastal resource management. This action led in October 1995 to the TCMP's final submission for federal approval.

The purpose of the TCMP is to improve the management of the state's coastal resources and to ensure the long-term ecological and economic productivity of the coast, all within the framework of the federal Coastal Zone Management Program. The TCMP is a "networked" program linking the regulations, programs, and expertise of state, federal, and local entities that manage various aspects of coastal resource use. Specifically, the TCMP identifies coastal natural resource areas; identifies uses or activities that may adversely affect those areas; and sets uniform policies to address those effects.

Management of the program is overseen by the Coastal Coordination Council (Council), which is chaired by the commissioner of the General Land Office. The other members of the Council are the chair of the Parks and Wildlife Commission; the chair of the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission; the chair of the Texas Transportation Commission; the chair of the Texas Water Development Board; a member of the Texas State Soil and Water Conservation Board; a member of the Railroad Commission of Texas; and four gubernatorial appointees. The gubernatorial appointees are a local elected official from the coastal area, a coastal resident, a coastal business person, and a representative of agriculture.

The Council is charged with adopting uniform goals and policies to guide decision-making by all entities regulating or managing natural resource use within the Texas coastal zone, and to review significant actions taken or authorized by state agencies and subdivisions that may adversely affect coastal natural resources. Ultimately, the TCMP is designed to avoid duplication of effort and conflicts in agency policies and regulatory decisions, and to address five primary issues of concern to coastal communities; coastal erosion, wetlands protection, water supply and water quality, dune protection, and shoreline access.
